Fringe Benefits	The definition of wages for Payroll Tax includes any fringe benefits as defined in the Fringe Benefits Tax Act 1986. Benefits that are taxable under the FBT Act are also taxable under the Act and must be declared as wages for payroll tax purposes. If

Field	Description
	a benefit is exempt under the FBT Act, it is also exempt for Payroll Tax purposes.
Contractor Payments	Under certain circumstances, payments to contractors are taxable where the contractor provides labour services and works exclusively for one person. The provisions relating to contractors deem contractors to be 'employees' and payments made to them, excluding GST are deemed to be wages. Please refer to Information Circular 5: Contractors and the Contractor Decision Tools page for further information.
Employer Super Payments	All pre-tax employer contributions are taxable.
Commissions	A commission is a payment made to an employee based on a percentage of the profits earned by the employer for the services rendered by the employee. As such, a payment is a reward for the employees' services. Commissions are taxable for South Australian payroll tax.
Directors Fees	Director's fees, superannuation, allowances, fringe benefits and shares and options are subject to Payroll Tax. This applies to working and non-working directors.
Shares & Options	Shares or options issued under employee share acquisition schemes are treated as liable wages. Under these provisions, the grant of a share or option to an employee, a director, or deemed employee constitute wages.
Termination Payments	The Act provides that certain payments made to an employee on termination of employment are subject to Payroll Tax. Specifically, the following payments are taxable: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Payments for actual services rendered up to the date of termination; • Accrued long service leave; and • Employment termination payments
